

Wednesday in Big Valley

Everyday is fun in Big Valley but Wednesdays are even better. The Belleville Livestock Auction brings farmers into town for the morning, and flea markets, yard sales and roadside stands pop up throughout Big Valley. Arrive early because the auction and flea markets close up around

A word about The Amish. Big Valley is home to many sects in the Amish religion. Beliefs and customs vary but this basic tenet is true— The Amish here live quiet, peaceful lives and are not on display for tourists. Your best and easiest opportunity to talk to the Amish is to buy something from them. Look for produce stands at flea markets and along the road. Treat them with respect—just like you would any other vendor—and take home fresh veggies and a whoopie pie or two. Bring cash and a friendly smile!

Big Valley Dry Goods— Sunrise Lane, before the Allensville Mennonite Church. Also known as an Amish Wal-Mart, this shop is owned and staffed by an Amish family and stocks everything an Amish family would need to buy. Shop by sunlight or lamplight because there's no electricity in the building. It's a trip to the past! Look closely for the sign. Once past Long Lane, start looking on your left for a white metal building standing in the middle of a field. If you see the church, you've gone too far.

Turn around and try again.
